Surviving In An Online World: Understanding Social Media – A Primer for Parents, Teachers, Counselors and Others

Learn what colleges, employers, and others can see of your child's digital footprint in this interactive course. Learn how key social networking sites Facebook and Twitter work, as well as privacy settings for both. Become familiar with reputation management tools for kids. We will discuss safety precautions that can be taken to help protect your children as well as keep you informed about potential dangers. We will examine how free apps and games like Zynga's Farmville actually open up your child's private information and information from their social graph to outsiders.

Live demonstrations of related websites and social networking platforms will be shown. Time will also be allocated for discussion.

The course is taught by Michelle Beckham-Corbin, owner of Social Media Strategy Firm, C3: Creating Connections Consulting, LLC. Michelle is a former marketing manager for Procter & Gamble and has been working with digital/social media since 2005. She is a parent of two teens. She has presented Online Networking/Reputation Management programs at area high-schools and universities as well as for parent organizations.

Warren County History Comes Alive

The following two presentations will be facilitated by John Zimkus, Historian and Education Director for the Warren County Historical Society. John has been researching all things historical in Warren County both as a teacher and as a professional on the staff of the Warren County Historical Society for over 25 years. He is also the Historian of the Golden Lamb, "Ohio's oldest continually operated business." John has been recognized numerous times, on both the state and local levels, for his work in teaching and preserving Warren County's vivid past. Join John and learn more about life in other times in Warren County.

Lebanon, Ohio Goes to War in 1861: The Beginning of the Civil War

We will take a close look how, in April 1861, Lebanon, Ohio transforms, in the word of its local newspaper, into "a war camp" with the outbreak of the Civil War. From the raising of local military companies to life on the home front, the War Between the States changes this small country town.
